TENS OF THOUSANDS GET WAGE ADVANCE

Proposal by Textile Companies to Increase Pay Will Affect Vast Numbers of Hands.

[Associated Press Dispatch]

BOSTON, March 11.—It is estimated tonight that a hundred and fifty thousand cotton and woolen mill operatives in northern New England will share in the advance in wages at least five per cent before April 1. Advances received here indicate the manufacturers of Fall River and elsewhere in southern New England are considering the advisability of meeting the increase decided upon by the mills having their head offices in Boston. Should the thirty thousand operatives of Fall River and a like number in New Bedford be given higher wages, manufacturers at other points south feel it would be policy to take similar action. An advance in all the New England textile districts would affect directly more than a quarter of a million people. Considerable unrest exists. Mill foremen of Fall River are tonight to discuss a demand for higher wages. Many unions will take up the discussion during the week. There has been no change in wages there since 1908, and some manufacturers say privately they expect to grant a five per cent increase April 1. Notice of the five per cent raise was posted today in Maine and New Hampshire in cotton mills employing forty-five thousand hands, the increase dating from today. Mills in various Massachusetts towns advanced the pay of about eleven thousand hands.

JILTED GIRL SHOOT REAL ESTATE DEALER

Then Tried to Kill Himself But is Restrained by Partner of Her Victim.

[Associated Press Dispatch]

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—J. Edward Edge, a young musician and real estate dealer, was shot and instantly killed by Viola Carver, 23, clerk in a music store, and a recent arrival from Tacoma. Miss Carver waited this evening until Edge left his office in the Consolidated Realty building, and shot him in the corridor. She then attempted to kill herself but was frustrated by Edge's partner. Edge was the same age as his slayer. Their acquaintance is said to have begun through purchases of music at a store where the young woman was employed. A few days ago Edge is said to have told her her attentions were unwelcome. In her cell tonight she declared she could not live without him and begged to be allowed to kill herself.

JAPANESE STUDY "VALOR OF IGNORANCE"

Gen. Homer Lea's book "The Valor of Ignorance," it will be remembered, was translated a short time ago into Japanese. Word has just come from friends in the east that the Japanese translation has gone through twenty editions within thirty days and that the publisher there expects it to go to one hundred editions in six months—an absolutely unprecedented sale in that country. It happens that this week a lecturer at the Royal Colonial Institute in London, who talked of the Pacific ocean as the strategic center of mankind, endorsed Gen. Lea's opinion of the possibility of a Japanese invasion of America. But Gen. Lea has remarked in "The Valor of Ignorance" that "the interests of European nations in the Pacific are only tentative. The centralization of power in the Pacific is impossible to any nation other than China, Japan, or the United States, since such power would be without and far removed from the geographical, political, and military interests of any nation other than these." Gen. Lea is at present in China, in close connection with President Sun Yat-sen of the provisional republic.

PHOENIX NATL. HAS BIRTHDAY

Banking House Is Twenty Years Old—Comptroller's Compliment.

NO EXAMINATION FOR NEW CHARTER

The Phoenix National Bank is twenty years old today its charter having been granted March 12, 1892. As national bank charters are only issued for twenty years, the bank today begins business under a new charter, the manner of obtaining which is the finest testimonial the bank could have.

It is customary when a bank's charter expires, to submit the bank to a special examination to ascertain if its conditions are good and to force the retirement of any securities that may be carried as assets, before a new charter is issued. In the case of the Phoenix National Bank the conditions as shown by the regular examinations have been so good an exception was made to the general rule. There was no special examination and the charter will be issued in Washington today as indicated by the following extract from a letter written January 22 in the office of the comptroller of the currency, dated January 22 and addressed to the cashier of the Phoenix National bank. It says:

"Sir—Referring to the proposed extension of the corporate existence of the Phoenix National bank for a period of twenty years you are informed that in view of the condition shown by the report of examination of your bank made November 18, 1911, certificate authorizing extension will be issued and mailed on March 12, 1912, the date of the expiration of the present charter."

H. D. Marshall, cashier of the Phoenix National bank, was a national bank examiner for four years and says that this is only the second instance of the kind that ever came under his observation. A better recommendation for a bank could hardly be conceived.

The directors of the bank held a meeting yesterday afternoon, accepted the resignation of W. F. Staunton as a director and elected to succeed him William S. Humbert, president of the Arizona Seed company. Mr. Humbert qualified at once and starts his connection with the bank simultaneously with its new charter.

The directors of the bank are its officers, except in the case of H. M. Galliver who is not a director, and in the cases of W. A. Drake, L. H. Chalmers and James S. Douglas who are directors but not officers. Mr. Drake is the general manager of the S. E. P. & P. Railroad; Mr. Douglas is one of the leading business men of Douglas and Mr. Chalmers is a well known Phoenix attorney.

The president of the bank is E. B. Gage who still claims Arizona as his residence and visits here frequently, though he spends much time in California, and is known as one of the successful financiers of the coast. H. J. McClung, T. E. Pollock and M. C. McDougall are vice presidents. Mr. McDougall has been connected with the bank in that capacity and as cashier during the ten years he has lived here. Mr. Pollock is a moving spirit in several Arizona banks, both here and in the northern counties, and Mr. McDougall though now actively connected with the bank as vice president has also been a leading merchant of Phoenix for many years. H. D. Marshall Jr., but recently became the cashier of the bank succeeding R. E. Burmister who became the cashier of a San Francisco bank. Mr. Marshall has been in the banking business all his life and as indicated was for four years a national bank examiner. H. M. Galliver is the assistant cashier and has the honor of being the oldest employee of the institution, entering it as a clerk many years ago; this with the single exception of the janitor, Henry Davis who has carried the keys to the bank building ever since it was erected.

It is timely and illuminating to refer to the growth of the bank. When the bank was first chartered, its capital stock was $50,000 and its deposits as reported May 17, 1892, the first report, were $19,827.31. It was made a depository for United States funds and disbursing officers in 1905 and its deposits have steadily grown until last night they amounted to over $1,800,000. The capital is now $150,000 and the surplus and undivided profits are $161,000 more.

The original promoters of the Phoenix National Bank were E. F. Kellner, B. Heyman, Chas. F. Chapman, T. W. Pemberton, D. L. Murray, E. J. Bennett, J. A. Fleming, P. J. Cole and L. H. Goodrich. Of these T. W. Pemberton and L. H. Goodrich are dead; C. F. Chapman went to Mississippi; B. Heyman is a merchant of Tacoma; E. F. Kellner still has his Phoenix interests, but lives in California; D. L. Murray is in San Diego; J. A. Fleming is in Kansas City; P. J. Cole in Globe, and E. J. Bennett is president of the Valley Bank of Phoenix. Subsequently the bank came under the ownership very largely of D. M. Ferry, L. Bowen and those interested in the estate of Simon J. Murphy of Detroit, and E. M. Murphy and associates of Prescott. All of the eastern interests are now out of the bank, the stock of which is owned entirely by Arizona people. The institution, now bigger and stronger than ever, is strictly an Arizona bank, run by Arizona capital and its earnings are invested in Arizona. And, strangely enough, though the men who started the bank were all prosperous and those who survive still are, and though the bank is bigger and better than ever, not one of the men interested in its beginning, is still connected with it, and only one man connected with it now was even in the city when the bank was started, except L. H. Chalmers, a director. It is a good illustration of the constant change that is going on in a new country.

today, it will tone and strengthen the stomach and make you well again.

In the city when the bank was started, except L. H. Chalmers, a director. It is a good illustration of the constant change that is going on in a new country.

In order to meet the needs of the valley and numerous of its patrons the management of the bank a little over a year ago organized the Phoenix Savings Bank and Trust Co., to give the people an exclusive savings bank and for the purpose of negotiating loans on real estate, which a national bank cannot do. That institution has a capital and surplus of $150,000 and its officers and board are identical with those of the Phoenix National except that W. C. Foster has charge in a managerial capacity. This bank held a directors' meeting yesterday also, electing W. S. Humbert to succeed W. F. Staunton, as was done by the National bank, that the uniformity of management might be preserved.

TWO FELLOWSHIPS OPEN.

The Presbyterian Board of Home Missions announces two fellowships of $1,000 each and expenses, the holders to go to Europe to study immigration at its cradle, and then to return to the United States to work at least three years for immigrants and their welfare at this end, under the direction of the board. One of the men selected will be sent to Poland and Russia for two years and the other to Italy and the Balkans for a year and a half. There will not be competitive examinations, but consideration of the general fitness of all candidates. Such candidates need not be Presbyterian ministers, but must be men acceptable to Presbyterians, and to have had adequate training.

The plan is a part of a thorough policy adopted by this and other home mission boards, concerning immigration, country church, and similar lines of Christian effort. Two years ago three volunteers went to south eastern Europe at their own cost, studied races and languages and have since assisted in the conduct of Christian work for immigrants in America. Their experience leads to the placing of the training of immigrant workers upon this thorough policy. There are in Presbyterian seminaries about one hundred and fifty men of European parentage, some of them of immigrant arrival, and it is assumed that the fellowship will be secured from their number. Selection is not, however, restricted to them.

HUGH FULLERTON STICKS UP FOR PARSNIPS

In the March American Magazine, Hugh S. Fullerton, writing an article on "Eating," sticks up for parsnips. He says:

"And parsnips! Say, when I was a boy I used to believe that muskrats were the only things that ate parsnips. We used to bait the traps with them, and, honestly, a muskrat will walk two miles just to get caught in a trap with parsnips in it. I never realized for years what good judgment muskrats had. Since the parsnips lengthwise after paring them, roll them in cracker meal, and fry in deep fat until they are crisp. And speaking of cheap things that are good to eat, take Danny Taylor's recipe. Danny homesteads down on the Mimbres at Old Town, where the Santa Fe trail comes down the mountains off the Black Pass over Cooke's. He takes about a pound of salt pork. Now don't skip until you hear the rest of it. He cuts the pork into strips about a third of an inch thick and soaks it in fresh water to freshen it a bit. Then he drops it into a hot pan, and allows it to fry a minute in its own grease. On the table near the stove he has a pan of cracker meal and when the pork begins to get almost transparent, he lifts each slice with a fork and dips it in the cracker meal, covering both sides and then dropping it back into the pan, and when that pork is all crispy and crackly and golden brown, it is a dish worth going all the way down to Grant county, New Mexico, just to taste."

"Half this complaint about the increased cost of living is due to the fact that nowadays folk are either too stuck up to eat cheap things or don't know how to prepare them. Take Aunt Liza Blanton's greens, for instance. Aunt Liza lives at Hillsboro, Ohio. Leaves of the young dandelion, the upper leaves of the young wild mustard, a little shepherd's purse and a few leaves of tender horsefoot. She'll give you a mess for ten cents, enough to feed ten New Yorkers or two hungry Hillsboroans—they still eat down there in the hills—say about half a bushel. Let them boil and then simmer until it is just one oozy mass of green, with a chunk of salt pork sizzling away in the middle—honestly it makes me hungry to write this. Wait till I come back from the pantry."
